WEBSTER VETERINARY PREPARES TO LAUNCH EQUIHEALTH™

Webster Veterinary is excited to announce a new online service for equine practices called EquiHealth. This innovative communications platform provides veterinarians with a secure Internet portal for their clients to access equine medical information plus descriptive, easy-to-understand resources and educational materials with 3D graphics.

Client services within EquiHealth include online medical records, integrated Coggins certificates and access to Webster's VetSource home delivery program. Veterinarians can also log into their own administrative portal to send clients convenient electronic appointment and health service reminders or to enter a suite of eMarketing tools including online surveys, e-newsletters and other personalized updates that can be sent to horse owners. Unlike other portal services, EquiHealth can be directly integrated into the practice website.

"EquiHealth provides a powerful connection between veterinarians and horse owners that will help grow business, strengthen relationships and facilitate optimal care," Webster Veterinary Equine Sales Director Derrick Drinnon said.

The new service will be available to a limited number of practices in June with a full release planned for later that month. For more information, visit www.equihealth.com or call 888.826.0935.
